From the Paris Letter, dated April 24.

Paris, April 24. The laſt Letters from Straſbourg, which are of the 16th, adviſe, that the Troops which are returning from Dauphiné began to arrive in Alſace, where new Magazines were erecting; and that the Forces were forthwith to be cantoned, in ſuch a Manner that they may be ſpeedily aſſembled according to the Motions which ſhall be made by the Enemy, who continue to draw together their Troops towards Philipsbourg and Landau, and to put their Places into a good State of Defence: But the Circles of the Empire far from augmenting their Forces, make no haſte to furniſh ſo much as their ordinary Contingents. If they oblige us to continue the War, we ſhall have an Army of at leaſt 100000 Men. One of our Parties of 30 Men, meeting one of the Enemy's of 40 near Fribourg, intirely defeated them, taking the commanding Officer with ſeveral of the Soldiers, and killing divers others on the Spot. The King and the Dauphin are in perfect Health: His Majeſty was t'other Day buſie for 7 or 8 Hours with his Miniſters. M. de St. Silveſtre, Governour of Briançon, died ſome Days ago. Letters from Madrid of the 20th tell us, that the Return was expected of a Courier whom my Lord Lexington had ſent to General Staremberg, to know what Day the Duke de Popoli might enter Catalonia with his Army, to take Poſſeſſion of that Principality: In the mean time the Count de Glimes had already advanced with ſome Troops as far as the Col de Balaguer, and had levelled without Oppoſition the Intrenchments which the Enemy had made there. The 21ſt the King diſpoſed of divers Eccleſiaſtical Preferments, among others he has given the Abbey of Savigni to the Abbot Gautier.
